Seasons of Duke, the Theme

The 2014-2015 yearbook staff has worked hard to capture the the essence of Duke. We aimed to highlight some "defining Duke" moments to best illustrate the many seasons of Duke. Visually, this works well with our campus' breathtaking manifestations of nature and its transformations throughout the year.

You might notice that this year's Chanticleer is different. Because it's a book meant exclusively for seniors, the yearbook staff created a list of "defining Duke" moments that will highlight the different events, sports, and people that make up this university. Throughout the book, you'll find polaroid pictures that showcase quintessential Duke moments and highlight what it means to be a student here.

We hope that you view this yearbook not only to scan for the activities you were a part of, but that you also take the time to appreciate the value of memorializing these in a timeless book.

Important Thank You's:

To Rodolfo for his attention to detail and unwavering resolve. Your encouragement and calm demeanor made stressful times and looming deadlines easier to bear. Thank you for always making us laugh with your (sometimes inappropriate) sense of humor, not to mention that there is no better company for a sixteen hour day in a windowless room.

To Meghan for her tenacity and superhuman follow-through: you are taking the reins at a difficult time for yearbooks and I can think of nobody more capable than you. Thank you for keeping me honest and bringing so much energy and life to our team.

To Yajing for his years on the staff and his steady work on the yearbook throughout the years.

To Kim Trezona for her angelic patience, uncanny ability to spread confidence throughout the group, and immense knowledge of all things yearbook. I appreciate your help these past four years and I hope you can forgive all of the deadlines we missed and white hairs we might have caused you.

To Brian for his candid advice and constant support as we battled being defunded. I appreciate your trust in all of us.

To the staff at LifeTouch for the wonderful senior portraits and to Jim Rainey for his yearly visits and stimulating conversations.

To Duke Photography for the athletic photographs and senior class pictures.

To The Chronicle for their lending us their talented photographers and their assistance in filling some important gaps throughout the year. Cheers to the start of a long-lasting relationship.

To the Duke Alumni Association for their assistance in keeping The Chanticleer alive so that, together, we can continue to engage students and alumni and showcase a collective Duke.

And lastly, to you, the reader, for deciding to purchase the 2014-2015 Duke Yearbook and, by extension, making this book possible. Unfortunately, this edition was difficult to produce due to constant changes with The Chanticleer's budget. This year Duke Student Government cut our budget by 70% meaning that - for the first time in history - the yearbook was not free to every Duke student. Thank you for believing in the value of a physical book and for being an advocate of Duke's history and tradition.

Letter From the Editor

Dear Class of 2015 graduate,

Thank you for reaching the end of the 2014-2015 yearbook.

And a very bittersweet congratulations to all of us who are now faced with the scary prospect of leaving our home of the past four years.

Instead of trying to impart knowledge on you, I'm going to be very honest.

I'm scared of this next step.

The last year of my Duke career I was overwhelmed with a need to cherish. Everything made me preemptively nostalgic and I started categorizing my life into bucket lists of "firsts" and "lasts" and moments to be documented. I began taking long walks and I ate my way through Durham. I thought of all my favorite spots and visited them frequently; I contemplated each nook from a different angle and came back again every season to start the process all over again - there was to be no corner of Duke left behind. I even studied in the engineering quad which, as an English major, is no small feat.

I thought about how grateful I am to Duke for its many imperfections. For giving me a place to be young and restless. For always giving me something new to look forward to on days when everything else was tedious. And – if nothing else – for helping me develop the skill to write 10 pages in one night and still make it to Shooters.

Now - a month after graduation - I hate the idea of saying goodbye not only to my home, but also to the last time in my life that I'll have so many opportunities and so few responsibilities.

Luckily, I've learned that home is not just a place but a state of mind. Home is people and home is memories just as much as it is our beloved gothic wonderland and (less beloved) construction.

However, moving on is both inevitable and necessary. Although this is a painful goodbye, for the first time in my life I'm realizing the true meaning of the phrase "comfort and growth cannot coexist."

And it's time to grow up.

It is my hope that flipping through the pages of this book has triggered some nostalgia and that it has helped lessen the distance between wherever you find yourself now and your Duke home. My goal is that this book will reflect a part of your Duke and will give you a glimpse into ordinary life on campus in its beautiful, unglamorized randomness.

All the best,
Natalia Arenas Gallo, Editor
